

Sermons from Science

Sermons from Science relates the processes of the biological and physical sciences to the spiritual dynamics that affect human life. There is so much we can learn about our God, our fellow humans, and ourselves by watching the processes of the natural world around us. This book uses illustrations ranging from ants to aqueducts and from microbes to magnets and relates them to a wide spectrum of human experiences including such areas as adversity, forgiveness, gratitude, love, and solitude. The world of science delivers each day its own sermonic messages of hope and inspiration.
