

Exporting Household Furniture In The US Of America

The US of American offers great opportunities for foreign exporters who have a clear understanding of its characteristics. The size of the American residential furniture market is over $40 billion (at wholesale prices). There are no borders, a single language and a single currency. Not only is the market very large, during the past decade it has been growing faster than most other countries of the developed world. It seems that this positive trend will continue. The American economy is very diversified and can accommodate a wide variety of niche products. Furniture imports have been advancing at double-digit rates in recent years. Today about one-third of all furniture consumed in America is produced abroad. In fact, the US is the worlds largest furniture importer.
