

The five stories in this anthology were written by Richard S. Levine and have appeared previously in other publications. Each story relates to genetics or epigenetics in some fashion. “You Can Choose Your Parents” refutes the notion that you can’t choose your parents. “Liar” examines the life of a young woman who visits a Lie Bar. “The Library of Pain” probes a psychologist’s patient who has issues with pain. In “It’s in the Stars” we meet a couple who wonder if fame will be in the stars for their children. “My Brother’s Keeper” is a clone mystery that takes place on Mars. Richard S. Levine has had short stories published in OGS Speculative Fiction, Raygun Revival, The Fifth Di, The Lorelei Signal, and other online and print magazines. He is also the designer and programmer of the award winning classic video game, Microsurgeon.
